

DR. BUCHANAN RESENTED.

To Die in the Week Beginning July 1—Action of the Court of Appeals.

Albany, May 27. In accordance with the order received to produce Dr. Robert W. Buchanan, the wife-poisoner, before the court of appeals to be re-sentenced to death, Warden Sage, State Detective Jackson and Keeper Bell brought him here this morning. Buchanan was handcuffed to Bell. They arrived soon after noon and were driven from the railway station immediately to the court of appeals chamber. From 10 o'clock this morning the corridors of the capitol leading to the court of appeals were filled with persons looking for the coming of Dr. Buchanan and his counsel. Early in the day the superintendent of public buildings had a corps of men guarding the corridor leading directly to the court room. In the court room the judges assembled at 10 o'clock promptly. Judge O'Brien being the only absentee. The court at once took up the calendar, and during the hearings only a few persons were admitted.

Dr. Buchanan's case was not taken up until 1:35 p. m. District Attorney Fellows and Assistant District Attorney Lindsay appeared for the people. Chief Judge Andrews announced this was the day for the producing of the prisoner Buchanan, and he was unshaken and given a seat. After the usual formalities District Attorney Fellows recited the various convictions and sentences of the prisoner and his last reprieve by Governor Morton. He said in conclusion:

"It is the contention of the people that the judgment stands in effect, but the day of execution having passed, a new day must be set."

Judge Andrews—Is there anything to be said for the defense?

Buchanan's counsel, Gibbons, then began the defense. He stated that he had already filed a brief with the court, but he desired to add that lately they had discovered new evidence.

"I am satisfied," said he, "that if we have time we can prove this man's innocence, and if the court will give us a commission to inquire as to his guilt or innocence, we will present proof."

Judge Andrews, turning from the counsel to Buchanan, said: "Buchanan, stand up."

The prisoner arose and put his hands beneath the table of his coat in a jaunty manner.

Judge Andrews asked: "What have you to say why this court should not sentence you?"

Buchanan replied: "I will say that I am entirely innocent of the murder of my deceased wife, and I enter my protest against this court sentencing me."

Judge Andrews—You may sit down. Judge Andrews then addressed the court. He said: "These proceedings are provided for by statute requiring this court to sentence a prisoner when the time has passed for the execution of a previous sentence. It is made the duty of the court to inquire into the circumstances, and if no legal reason exists to grant the application. The legal reasons of the defendant for denying the application presented but one question—whether a denied application to the United States courts acts as a stay over the law of the state. This court cannot consider the merits of the case, because it has already, in a former decision, given its opinion as against the defendant, and as to the question of whether anything has intervened between that time and now to cause a delay, we have, after very careful consideration of the questions presented, concluded that it is our duty to obey the statute."

"The conclusion is that a warrant shall issue commanding the warden to do execution of the sentence heretofore pronounced against the prisoner during the week beginning July 1."

Buchanan sat in his chair, his face showing extreme nervousness. Detective Jackson handcuffed him to the guard rail, and he was taken out and driven to the station, where the party took the 2:40 p. m. train for Sing Sing.

"All in a Row."

It is a unique sight to view at Carlsbad the motley row of drinkers of all nations, languages, manners and costumes hurrying down in single file to the boiling Sprudel Spring with an earthenware mug in their hands, or slung by a strap round the neck or over the shoulder, and patiently waiting their turn to sip of the precious fluid.

For three centuries or more, all sorts and conditions of men, from the king to the tramp have pilgrimized hither in search of new life or relief from pain. But we cannot in these competitive days afford the time and money to travel so far afield, so it is brought to your doors bottled in its natural and original form at the Spring, or in powder evaporated on the spot, and so well known as the Carlsbad Sprudel Water, and Carlsbad Sprudel Salt.

The signature, "EISNER & MENDELSON Co., Sole Agents, New York," is on every bottle. Beware of imitations.

At Short Beach.
